Still a public house.

The building carries a date stone 1674 L. - I.E. This date stone has been rebuilt into a "new" frontage, the oldest portion being at the rear, where there were still whattle walls inside until quite recently, and they may still be there.

The Tranquility Lodge of Masons met at the Boars Head in 1843.

Believed to be the last public house in Rawtenstall to brew its own ale.
